Sadness, anger as killer pleads guilty

South Boston man pleads guilty to throwing glass in bar that killed NY man ◗ Family, friends speak at sentencing ◗ Michael DiMaria was visiting a friend at The Lansdowne pub

YOON S. BYUN/GLOBE STAFF

▶ Jennifer DiMaria, sister of Michael DiMaria, cries on her way back to her seat after making a statement.

"[Guardiola] has no idea what it was like to sit in the hospital all night and then to be told our friend has been killed. We will never be OK and are forever heartbroken by this monumental loss."

DANIELLE O'BRIEN, DIMARIA'S FRIEND, WAS AT THE BAR THAT NIGHT AND WAS ALSO INJURED BY THE SHARDS OF GLASS

michael.naughton@metro.us

The incident that left Long Island native Michael DiMaria bleeding to death on the floor of a Fenway bar was senseless and avoidable, prosecutors said.

Yesterday 26-year-old Hector Guardiola was sentenced to between four and seven years for that avoidable incident.

Guardiola pleaded guilty to throwing a glass inside The Lansdowne pub in August 2010 after an exchange of words with a friend of DiMaria's. DiMaria, who was unaware of his friend's argument, was standing with his friends and was hit with a shard of glass that shredded his jugular.

More than a dozen family members and friends of 23-year-old DiMaria wore his picture on their shirt for the sentencing.

"Every time I go over the details of that night I find it hard to breathe," DiMaria's sister Jennifer said while crying.

She told Guardiola to always think about her brother.

"I wish you the same pain you have caused us many times over. Your actions have condemned me and my family to a life of hell," she said.

Guardiola pleaded guilty yesterday to manslaughter and assault and battery. Prosecutors requested a sentence of between five and 10 years. His lawyer requested a sentence of two years.

An example

Prosecutors urged the judge to impose a sentence of up to 10 years in prison in part to send a message to bar patrons.

▶ "People go to bars every night of the week and get into fights ... and have to make determinations how to end things," said Ian Polumbaum, an assistant district attorney.

Guardiola, who came to Massachusetts from Puerto Rico six years ago, was a dishwasher in a restaurant and fed animals in a hospital lab. He had a drink at the bar that night with a female friend and was leaving when he and DiMaria's friend bumped into each other.

The incident prompted the bar to temporarily stop using glassware and an examination of that night by city licensing officials.

Guardiola's family and friends did not comment to reporters as they left the courthouse.

Harvard scammer back in court

A faux-Harvard student who worked his way into the university by lying about his credentials was back in Middlesex Superior Court yesterday for allegedly violating his probation after citing the school on a job résumé.

The Crimson reports Adam Wheeler returned to jail without bail until his next court date on Nov. 17.

Wheeler received 10 years probation in December for falsely claiming he graduated from Phillips Academy in Andover and lying about SAT scores.

His lawyer acknowledged that his client violated probation when he applied for a job and used the school's name. METRO

Turn your tickets into tots' toys

BOSTON. If you start to rack up a pile of those bright orange parking tickets while doing your holiday shopping, just donate a toy and all will be forgiven.

Mayor Thomas Menino announced the launch of the city's annual "Toys for Tickets" program, letting drivers who get a violation on Boston's streets between Dec. 5 and 9, resolve it by donating a toy to an underprivileged child.

Donations will be accepted from Dec. 8 through 16 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at City Hall.

Last year the campaign contributed over $3,000 in toys to needy kids. METRO

Boston's best and its worst

Fanatics and hometown pride top the charts of 35 polled cities We are bad drivers, but wicked smart

Boston is home to some of the smartest, most sports-crazed, Fourth of July-celebrating residents in the U.S.

But its residents are horrible at driving and hosting a good barbecue.

According to a new online survey conducted by Travel and Leisure Magazine, residents and visitors ranked the Hub in a multitude of categories, including shopping, affordability, cocktails and attractiveness.

Respondents were asked to rate 35 cities they live in or had visited using a scale from 1 to 5, with 5 being the highest score. Responses were collected and tabulated by magazine staff.

Despite grumblings from some of the MBTA's regular users, Boston placed fifth among out-of-towners when it came to transportation services.

Residents' opinions differed slightly putting Boston in the seventh slot for trains and buses.

How we rank

- Tech Savvy: No. 5
- City pride: No. 5
- Historical sites: No. 5
- Cocktail hour: No. 26
- Weather: No. 28
- Barbecue: No. 34

Boston also topped the charts for smarts and sport fanatics, coming in third and second, respectively, according to visitors.

Residents put the Hub in second and first place for those same categories in the 2011 "America's Favorite Cities" survey.

The survey showed Boston held 14 titles on top 10 lists for various superlatives.

Boston's "friendliness" and driving abilities, however, were near the bottom of the list of 35 cities surveyed.

Paterno, Penn State pres. axed

Penn State University's governing body ousted legendary coach Joe Paterno last night along with university President Graham Spanier, ending Paterno's 46-year reign as head coach.

"It was not an easy decision," board of trustees Vice Chairman John Surma said last night shortly after 10 p.m. "In our view, things had reached a point that a change was necessary in the long interest of the university."

Riot police were dispatched to the university's main campus in State College, Pa., in anticipation of students' reaction to Paterno's ouster. For the last couple days, students publicly supported Paterno on and nearby the campus. Hundreds spent hours outside Paterno's home off campus Monday and Tuesday.

JoePa's firing comes after a day of growing criticism about the university's silence on the coach's future. Paterno said in a statement earlier in the day that he would stay on for the rest of the season, then retire.

Bad credit not good indicator

NEW YORK. A bad credit score is not linked to deviant behavior in the workplace, according to a new study set to be published in the Journal of Applied Psychology.

According to researchers at Louisiana State University who conducted the study, eliminating an individual from job contention based on negative credit information is unnecessary because it doesn't indicate the applicant will steal or engage in other bad behavior at work. MAINSTREET.COM

Murphy exits Oscars after producer's slur

Brett Ratner resigns from show following gay insult
He's the one who convinced Murphy to participate

Comedian Eddie Murphy bowed out yesterday as host of the upcoming Oscars, one day after producer Brett Ratner who had lured Murphy into the role also exited following an uproar from his use of a gay slur.

"I appreciate how Eddie feels about losing his creative partner, Brett Ratner, and we all wish him well," Tom Sherak, president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, which puts on the Oscars, said in a statement.

On Tuesday, Ratner resigned from the high-profile job as Oscar producer in the face of an industry firestorm after his answer to a question at a screening this past weekend of his new comedy, "Tower Heist," which Murphy stars in.

Ratner was asked about using rehearsals ahead of the film shoot, and he replied "rehearsing is for fags." He later apologized publicly, but gay rights groups and some members of the academy took issue with his use of the slur.

"First and foremost, I want to say that I completely understand and support each party's decision with regard to a change of producers for this year's Academy Awards ceremony," Murphy said in a statement.

"I was truly looking forward to being a part of the show that our production team and writers were just starting to develop, but I'm sure that the new production team and host will do an equally great job," Murphy said. REUTERS

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

Talking points

We already knew this, Arquette

Though they've yet to file for divorce more than a year after separating, David Arquette says his marriage to Courteney Cox is definitely over. When pressed by Howard Stern during a radio interview if he would break up with new girlfriend Christina McLarty and move back in with Cox if she asked, Arquette gave a simple "no." And while Stern has previously gotten plenty of information out of Arquette, the recent "Dancing with the Stars" contestant is looking to stay more tightlipped going forward: "I'm trying to keep my personal life personal," he says. "It's very hard for me because I'm a very honest person."

Town is warned about Harry

Prince Harry has moved on to Gila Bend, Ariz., for the final leg of his helicopter training in the U.S. — and his reputation has apparently preceded him. "We have some very pretty girls here," Gila Bend Mayor Ron Henry tells the Daily Mail. "Some of the dads won't take too kindly to a prince fornicating the night away and drinking into the small hours. It is a very quiet town with a lot of good Christian people. This isn't a party town." And yes, he said "fornicating."

Move over, Bertinelli

Jenny Craig attracts, let's say, "midlevel" celebs to be their spokespeople. Sara Rue, Valerie Bertinelli, Phylicia Rashad and Jason Alexander are among those who have been paid handsomely to shill the company. But they must have paid buckets of cash to afford their latest spokeswoman, Mariah Carey.

The company's big celeb get was revealed yesterday at New York City's Four Seasons. Carey arrived 20 minutes late to the conference and was escorted all the way to the stage to what we thought would be to take questions from reporters, which is why we were there. Instead, she was just interviewed by Gayle King about her involvement with Jenny Craig, which, by the way, is now just called "Jenny."

Carey says she started Jenny in July and has lost 30 pounds so far. She told King she was approached by three different weight loss companies while pregnant but picked Jenny because she clicked with the people. "Some other suitors have great money, have great ... whatever it is that their concepts are — I didn't really connect with the people, and this was only over the phone at first. The first time I spoke with the executors at Jenny it was like we really clicked."

"Like all day every day when I was pregnant, [I was] in the bath, with a towel, seriously, doing business calls, talking to lawyers with water splashing."
CAREY

www.metro.us
MORE GOSSIP
WWW.METRO.US/WORD
DOROTHY ROBINSON'S WORD BLOG

But Carey didn't discuss the diet exclusively: We also learned little personal tidbits about her, like the fact that she enjoys taking business calls while in the bathtub. "Like all day every day when I was pregnant, [I was] in the bath, with a towel, seriously, doing business calls, talking to lawyers with water splashing," she revealed. "[My trainer] Bernardo and I were doing exercises mainly in the water." As she demo'ed some of her aquatic moves, she made sure to look good in the process: "Let me do it a more elegantly for the photo — please don't get a bad angle."

Carey says that she was so embarrassed by her pregnant body that she never went naked. Anywhere. "I was never nude. I had a towel on in the tub, I had clothing on in the tub," she told King. "I'm not lying. You think I would let Nick see me looking rancid like that?"

Rancid? One thing's for sure: Mariah Carey will not becoming the spokesman for Earth Mothers International anytime soon.

—With additional reporting by Meredith Engel

Mariah Carey poses with Jenny Craig CEO Dana Fiser at a press conference yesterday at the Four Seasons Hotel New York to announce that she is the new Jenny Craig brand ambassador.

Also ...

Here are some more highlights from yesterday's press conference:

- Mariah doesn't own a scale, and the last time she weighed herself was when her single "My All" was out.
- Her twins have a website, www.dembabies.com.
- She bought an ultrasound machine during her pregnancy.
- The conference room was decked out with mood lighting, a white fur rug and white leather chairs.
- She has a penchant for using the word "dahhling."
- She actually does the two-cheek air-kiss. Really! Like you would expect any less.

Mixed bag on Occupiers

RE: "NO REASON TO COMPLAIN, OWS": Want do know why the Occupy Wall Street movement exists? Horoscope

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Being domineering can lead to complications with those who share your day. It can be particularly destructive if you encounter someone who is a trifle more forceful than you.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Even if it causes you some major inconvenience, don't let down those who are depending upon you. Meet your obligations like a responsible person.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Don't coerce a friend to agree with you when you know that she or he isn't in accord with your thinking. It does nothing but cause your pal to resent being put in that position.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. If experience has taught you that a certain topic agitates a friend, stay off of it or refuse to engage if another brings it up. Failing to do so could cause a nasty dust-up.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Be on your toes, because someone who knows how to manipulate your generous nature could hijack your finances.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. If you can't avoid dealing with someone who has a faculty for getting under your skin, be as tactful as you can. When this person makes a nasty comment, consider the source.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. It's going to just be one of those days when neglected duties or commitments are likely to catch up with you. When numerous things clamor for your attention, take it in stride.

Get ready for a real Sausagefest

And with Chef Dante de Magistris presiding over the proceedings, this is definitely a good thing

ERIN BALDASSARI/METRO

Chef Dante de Magistris mans the fire at his Cambridge restaurant.

LINDA LABAN

LINDA.LABAN@METRO.US

Chef Dante de Magistris stands in the open kitchen at il Casale, his Belmont restaurant, and carves Parma ham into delicate wafer-thin slices with zen-like calm. At dante, his namesake restaurant in East Cambridge, he prepares cotechino, a rich sausage that's cooked under ash to impart a smoky flavor. Whether it's sophisticated salami in the North, or flavoring up and eking out beans in the South, pork is important in Italian cooking. But de Magistris' annual fall patio cook-off, this year dubbed Sausagefest, will go beyond traditional sausage meat (see sidebar).

Meanwhile, dante's bar is cramped with afterworkers downing drinks and sfizi (sss-feet-zi), the Italian equivalent of tapas. There's arancini made with mushroom risotto and tangy scamorza cheese, the softest burrata cheese with crunchy pistachios, and that cotechino, which is served on grilled fennel.

The restaurant is calmer but soon fills despite being a midweek night. From the amber glow of table lights to the barbabietole — roasted beet panzanella where purple juices color and flavor the bread — and the berry rich crostini dessert add riveting spots of rich color to the pale toned elegant room.

Nasello, pan roasted New England hake, sits in a soup of cannellini beans; a touch of wilted kale adds verdant green. The voluptuous chicken scaloppini — cooked with marsala, garlic, chives, and pioppini mushrooms — is topped with a visually captivating mix of black trumpet mushrooms and deep-red braised dried tomatoes. Who said fall wasn't colorful this year?

The Sausage King

As de Magistris says, "Sausage is defined by being in a casing." Expect everything from veggie to fishy from Sausagefest guest chefs Toro's Jamie Bissonnette, Prezza's Anthony Caturano, Catalyst's William Kovel and more. Attendees choose the Sausage King or Queen.

Through Nov. 26
Bromfield Gallery

The two Julies in this exhibition share abstract sensibilities along with names. Weiman's side, "Wicked Lemonade," features paintings with more than 20 layers of color, added and removed as she goes, producing a unique effect. Vinette's work clashes chaos with order by painting curvaceous forms based on reflections off water, glass or chrome over a penciled grid resembling graph paper.

Through Dec. 4
Galeria Cubana
460 Harrison Ave., Boston

A dual exhibition of Cuban art, Bordon's work explores the human condition — his figures, even when with others, always seem lost in their own existential aloneness. Instead of people, Pardo depicts common objects often those associated with femininity like boots, handbags and stockings; they seem as meaningless, without an owner, as Bordon's people, without a purpose, appear to feel.

Kim Duk-Soo, master of the changgo, an hourglass-shaped drum, leads this Korean group as members skip in circles, leap and spin while dressed in big hats with long, colorful streamers. They play drums and a screechy oboe-like instrument, making an exhilarating cacophony that'd pass for avant-garde noise music if it weren't descended from a 5,000-year-old shamanic tradition.

The Orpheum
One Hamilton Pl., Boston
$20-$100, 617-448-2508

Teams from across North America will compete in this massive Indian dance-off. Modern Bhangra has roots in Punjabi folk dance and an affinity with hip-hop that has led to many crossovers: Missy Elliott famously used a Bhangra riff in "Get Ur Freak On." The colorful costumes, thumping beats, elaborate routines and super-high energy should make this a very entertaining show.

Truckers divide authorship duties in three ‘This way, it’s like playing in three different bands,’ says singer Patterson Hood

DANNY CLINCH

Drive-By songwriting

When it comes to singers, Drive-By Truckers think the more the merrier — even if that gives the six-piece rootsy rockers something of a split personality.

“This way, it’s like playing in three different bands,” co-founder Patterson Hood jokes about working with co-singer songwriters Mike Cooley and Shonna Tucker. “I don’t like to get bored, it keeps it interesting.”

The Georgia-based band’s fiery new album “Go-Go Boots” has a dominant character though.

“I had a lot of songs going into this one, it was definitely a record I felt very strongly about. But it balances out. Some albums, Mike has more songs. I’m always about collaboration. I love that aspect of the band.”

Partly by design, partly by accident, since forming in the fertile Athens scene in the ’90s, the Truckers have seen different players come and go. The current line-up has been in place since 2008, but Hood and Cooley go way back.

“We’ve been together 26 years, Mike and I. I’ve always loved his songs. As far having a third songwriter in the band, luckily for us it just worked out that way. Shonna, I love her writing. It’s very different from mine and Cooley’s, but that’s the point. Maybe growing up around the whole session musician scene as I did made having lots of different players appeal to me.”

Da Ya Think Hood is sexy?

Patterson Hood grew up with a musician/producer father, David Hood, founder of Muscle Shoals Sound Studio. The elder Hood played with big names from The Staples Singers to Pixies’ Frank Black and even blue-eyed blues wailer turned pop singer Rod Stewart.

“My father’s had quite a career. He played with so many great artists back in the day.”

And Rod? Was it during the singer’s disco period?

“He played on Rod Stewart’s ‘Tonight’s The Night.’ Right before his disco era,” Hood chuckles. “It was the album before ‘Da Ya Think I’m Sexy?’ He just missed that!”

COURTESY OF RELATIVITY MEDIA

1 'Immortals' Critics have been buzzing that the director of "The Cell" and the man behind one of the two new Snow White remakes, Tarsem Singh, has a fun hit on his hands with this tale of a man (Henry Cavill) chosen by Zeus to fight against King Hyperion's quest to find the ultimate weapon of mass destruction.

Five reasons to hit the movies this weekend

2 'J. Edgar' Though Clint Eastwood's latest effort may not shine like some of his previous films, this biopic about the first head of the FBI is fascinating — if only for the way it makes Leo DiCaprio look fat and decrepit.

3 'Jack and Jill' Isn't it just the pinnacle of a comic actor's career when they get to play multiple lead characters? Just ask Eddie Murphy how "Norbit" went down. In this film, Adam Sandler plays a man faced with some unwanted quality time with his annoying twin sister.

4 'Tower Heist' The East Coast answer to "Ocean's 11" stars Ben Stiller as an apartment building manager who assembles a group of fellow disgruntled employees to steal back the pension money that rich tenant (Alan Alda) squandered in a Madoff-esque scam.

▶ "A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas"

5 'A Very Harold & Kumar 3D Christmas' Our favorite modern-day Cheech and Chong are back six years after crashing Guantanamo Bay for a very stoney Christmas adventure. Statistics tell the story of Pats' year

- Belichick cares about three: Points, turnovers, efficiency inside the 20
- New England has excelled in some of those
- But not nearly all of them

GETTY IMAGES

▶ The Patriots can score. But they're turning the ball over way too much.

Mark Twain made it clear there are lies, damned lies and statistics.

Bill Belichick isn't having any of it.

That's not to say Belichick gets wrapped up in stats over all else. Or that he cares much for the stats that point out just how terrible the Patriots' pass defense really is.

But the coach does have some favorite numbers.

"Points, turnovers, red area," Belichick named as notable. "I would say I'd put those in that order at the top. ... Whichever side of those you're on, they're important."

So how have the Patriots performed in those three areas? Call it "mixed."

Yes, they score — but the 30-point streak is over. They haven't tallied more than 20 in any of their last three times out, resulting in one last-minute win and two losses.

Averaging 27.4 points per game, the Pats rank fourth in the NFL.

What about red zone efficiency? That's been pretty good, too.

The Pats have 23 touchdowns on 36 trips to the red zone, good for a 63.9 percent success rate — fourth in the league.

When it comes to keeping teams from scoring in the red zone, the Pats 'D' ranks 16th, giving up 18 touchdowns in 34 chances. They have, however, surrendered the most points (155).

Finally, there's turnover differential. Last season the Patriots had a plus-28, by far the best in the league in that ratio. This season? They're currently just even with 14 giveaways and 14 takeaways — a ranking tied for 15th.

There's your problem.

Released DL lands in Tampa

It didn't take former New England Patriots DL Albert Haynesworth very long to find work.

The Tampa Bay Buccaneers claimed the talented but troubled lineman on waivers yesterday, some 24 hours after he was released by the Pats.

The surprise move means the Bucs will pick up the contract Haynesworth signed with New England before the season. That's worth about $1.5 million to the Pats. METRO

Macauley dies

Celtics legend "Easy Ed" Macauley has died, Saint Louis University said yesterday.

The school did not release any more details.

Macauley played for Boston from 1950 until 1956, when he was traded to the St. Louis Hawks for another pretty notable player — Bill Russell. METRO

FOX wants big things from UFC

FOX executives are expecting good things from the UFC's network TV debut Saturday. "You never rattle the cages of the ratings gods," FOX sports boss David Hill said, "but we expect to be pleasantly surprised on Sunday." METRO

White: No bigger for promotion

True to his hyperbolic self, UFC president Dana White is pulling no punches in his talk on Saturday's heavyweight title fight between Cain Velasquez and Junior dos Santos.

"This is, without a doubt, the biggest fight in UFC history," White said.

The bout is the only one planned for a one-hour special on FOX (9 p.m.). METRO

Red Sox manager search on

Alomar latest candidate to seek vacant bench spot Old friend Lovullo next on interview schedule

The Red Sox's search for a new manager continued yesterday, with Indians coach Sandy Alomar Jr. interviewing at Fenway Park.

Alomar is the third managerial prospect to formally interview in Boston.

He was supposed to be the fourth, but Rangers pitching coach Mike Maddux suddenly withdrew his name from consideration with the Sox, citing the distance between Boston and his Texas home and the potential impact on his family.

Of course, the next guy up probably won't have that particular problem.

Following Alomar on the interview schedule is Torey Lovullo, who was the manager at Triple-A Pawtucket in 2010. The Blue Jays' first base coach under John Farrell this past season, Lovullo will interview for the job tomorrow.

Following him is Gene Lamont, the only candidate thus far with previous MLB managerial experience, having led the White Sox (1992-95) and Pirates (1997-00).

Alomar played 20 MLB seasons for seven teams before retiring in 2001. He batted .281 with three home runs in 89 career games against the Red Sox.

Lamont also has a Red Sox connection, although a somewhat dubious one, having served as third base coach on the 2001 team that had clubhouse dysfunction on par with the 2011 trainwreck.

Alomar, Lovullo and Lamont join Pete Mackanin and Dale Sveum as official interviewees.

Lovullo has been close to landing a manager's job twice, with the Dodgers and Indians.
